"Life is a journey of growth, opportunities and accomplishments"

DOUBLE CELEBRATION FOR MONTFORT BOYS AND GIRLS

PUBLISHED ON THE STAR (18 MAY 2017)

Aspiring filmmaker Alex David credited his stint at Montfort Boys Town and several mentors for inspiring a positive transformation in himself and changing him for the better.

"I was very playful and was often punished when I first came in.

"But my attitude changed and I became more helpful, thanks to the guidance of several people," said the 20-year-old.

He credited teacher K. Chandrasegaran as well as student affairs officers A. Ananth Rao and A. Arokiam for their guidance and advice as well as for instilling discipline in him.

In addition to studying and developing his character at Montfort, David also lent his skill by offering free barber services to some 200 boys at the institution.

"Two other boys and I would cut and shave the hairs of our fellow students twice a week.

"We provided the service for free. If people chose to pay, we would give the proceeds back to Montfort," said the computer maintenance graduate who received a Special Service Award in recognition of his contribution.

"I plan to work for one year, before going to India to pursue a diploma in videography.

"As an only son, I also hope to make my parents proud of me," said David, adding that his parents travelled from Raub, Pahang, for his graduation ceremony.

A total of 199 graduates, comprising 149 boys and 50 girls, received their scrolls during a ceremony that coincided with Mothers Day.

Each student completed a two-year course in one of the programmes offered at Montfort – automotive, machining, graphic design and multimedia, computer maintenance, bakery and pastry, hospitality and electrical.

Several graduates received additional awards for being the best trainee in their programmes or for their outstanding skills and character.

Computer maintenance graduate Monica Bansman also received the Special Service

Award, which she felt was due to her role as one of Montfort's head prefects.

"My responsibility was to oversee the 20 girls in our block, to ensure our living quarters were clean and well-maintained and to care for the girls when they fell sick.

"I was a very hot-tempered person, but my time at Montfort has taught me to be more patient and humble," said the 21-year-old who wants to gain some work experience before furthering her education in graphic design.

Bansman added that she was thrilled that her family of 10 came from Sungai Buloh to celebrate her success.

Ang Kai Lun, an automotive graduate, was presented Montfort's highest honour when he was named Scholar of the Year.

"I am surprised to receive the award," said Ang, 20, who was one of Montfort's headquarters prefects.

"My graduation and the award would make a nice present for my mother on Mothers Day.

"I hope to set a good example for my siblings," said the oldest of four children.

The Fast and Furious movie fan plans to work for a couple of years, before pursuing a diploma in an automotive course.

Although he grew up helping his father at his car workshop in Sungai Pelek, Sepang, Ang said he wants to chart his own career in the automotive field.

Technical vocational specialist Satish Chand Bhandari, Montfort board of governors chairman Dr Philip Tan, director Mark Tee, as well as graduates' families and guardians were among those present at the ceremony.

In his speech, Satish said the skills learnt and characteristics developed by the graduates would go a long way in their lives.

"This batch had a 100% passing rate and they are fortunate to have jobs waiting for them upon graduation," he said, adding that their accreditation was under the Malaysian Skills Certificate scheme.

A total of 50 girls were among those who received their scrolls at the Montfort Boys Town graduation ceremony.

"The students owe a debt to Montfort, their parents and guardians, teachers and sponsors. I hope they will be worthy of the trust and investment in them.

"I would encourage the graduates to show their gratitude in two ways – by keeping in touch with the staff, and giving some contribution so Montfort can extend its programmes to more trainees."

Satish, who was the guest of honour also shared some parting words with the graduates.

He encouraged them to continue learning through self-study or by pursuing other certifications, and advised them to have a purpose and direction in life.

Montfort Boys Town is a 58-year-old non-governmental institution that provides skills training and character formation to boys and girls from economically and socially challenged backgrounds.
